THE UNIVERSE

The temperature of the sun at its core is 27 million degrees, but only about 10 million degrees on its surface

Earth's average orbital speed is about 30 kilometers per second or 110,000 kilometers per hour

How fast do we have to move to make it around the Milky Way in one galactic year? It's a huge circle, and the speed with which the Sun has to move is an astounding 483,000 miles per hour (792,000 km/hr)! The Earth, anchored to the Sun by gravity, follows along at the same fantastic speed.
